

AFL 2022 ROUND 18 CARLTON V GEELONG

PLAYED FOR BOTH

George Dougherty (right) was a much travelled player. A ruckman, he was recruited by Carlton from the Beulah Football Club in the Southern Mallee Football League, Dougherty managed just 17 games for the Blues in his three seasons with the club from 1934 to 1936. His lack of opportunity saw him move to Geelong where he thrived, playing 98 games (158 goals) including against Collingwood in the side's 1930 premiership side. When Geelong was unable to field sides during the Second World War, Dougherty went off to Footscray where he played 25 games (30 goals) in 1942 and 1943. Going back to Geelong in 1944 he played a further 23 games (30 goals) before leaving during the 1945 season to play out the season with South Melbourne. A broken ankle in the last game of the season saw him retire.

Another much travelled player of that era was Edward "Ted" Baker, who is described in the Encyclopedia of AFL Footballers as "a left-foot rover who excelled at the stab-kick". Joining Carlton from Wonthaggi, he managed only one game (0 goals) for the Blues in 1920. He was next found at Collingwood where he went on to play 33 games (24 goals) in 1922 and 1923. Four years later he is now seen at Geelong where he plays 95 games (101 goals) for the club between 1927 and 1932, including captaining the side to the 1931 premiership. During 1932 he returned to the Magpies, where he played a further 10 games (9 goals). In 1934 we find him at his fourth club, Footscray, where he plays just three games (5 goals) before retiring at the end of the season.

Jeremy Laidler was recruited to Geelong from the Calder Cannons with the Cats' second selection in the 2008 Rookie Draft. Having been selected for the senior side only twice in his three years with the club, 2008-2010, he was traded to Carlton and became a regular in defence for the Blues from 2011. However, with the advent of Michael Malthouse to the coaching position in 2013, Laidler did not fit into the coach's structure and played only one game for the season, and was delisted at the end of the season. He was then signed by the Sydney Swans as a delisted free agent. After playing 61 games (6 goals) for the Swans he retired at the end of the 2017 season.

EARLY DAYS - THE FOOTBALL RECORD

The first edition of the Football Record (April 27, 1912) told us, in precise terms what the values of the publication would be, with its motto being "Fair play is bonnie play":

"Its news will be up-to-date, and presented in a smart, crisp fashion, that cannot fail to meet with the approbation of readers. While the 'Record' will be widely read on the football grounds, it will possess features that will lead to the preservation of each number and, consequently, the little publication will go into the home – a recommendation which of itself will appeal to Advertisers."

OVER TO YOU

In the 1990s two Geelong players who had been appointed captain at the beginning of the season did not lead out the players once during the year as injury cruelled their season. Can you name them?

DID HE REALLY SAY THAT?

Much loved Essendon star and media commentator Tim Watson is believed to have made the following comments whilst coaching St Kilda:

- After a narrow loss: "One minute you're sitting on the mantelpiece, the next minute you are in the fire."
- After another defeat: "Some of our players had heads the size of boarding-house puddings."
- After a controversial goal-umpiring decision went against the Saints: "In the words of Marcel Marceau ... "

OFF TO CORIO OVAL

The Football Record of 10 September 1921 told us:

"There was not a more lively town in Australia on Saturday than Geelong. It was like a gala day down there. Nothing like the crowd has assembled near the shores of Corio since the Head of the River races were decided on the Barwon. 5,000 left Melbourne in four trains. This was a record. In addition large numbers begged, borrowed, or hired motor cars and spun along the delightful track to the Pivot. Many motored from Maryborough, Camperdown, Queenscliff and Colac to see what had been predicted would be a great game. And so it was. Carlton had to go for their lives to win. They won." Carlton 8.15 (63) def. Geelong 6.11 (47)
