VALE BILLY PICKEN

The football world was saddened to learn of the death of Collingwood star Billy Picken on July 23. Recruited from the Macarthur League, he arrived at Collingwood in 1974 at the age of 17, making his debut in Round 5 against Carlton. Originally a forward, he soon developed into a talented centre half back. Billy played a total of 212 games (46 goals) for the Magpies, including four losing grand finals and the 1977 drawn grand final, before transferring to Sydney in 1984, where he played 28 games (0 goals), a number of injuries causing him to retire in 1985. He won Collingwood's Copeland Trophy in 1978 and 1983, was named an All-Australian in 1983, and was named on the half-back flank in the club's Team of the Century in 1997. In 2006 he was inducted into the Magpies' Hall of Fame. He is the father of Western Bulldogs player Liam, and former Brisbane Lions player Marcus.

PLAYED WITH BOTH TEAMS

- Josh Mahoney: Collingwood (1997-1998), 19 games, 8 goals, Western Bulldogs (1999-2000), 11 games, 2 goals, Port Adelaide (2004-2007), 67 games, 77 goals. A gutsy and dogged defender he later developed into a forward and took his opportunity to gain a position in Port's 2004 premiership team.
- Scott Cummings: Essendon (1994-1996), 40 games, 83 goals, Port Adelaide (1997-1998), 37 games, 102 goals, West Coast (1999-2001), 46 games, 158 goals, Collingwood (2002), 5 games, 6 goals. A well-travelled footballer who played with four clubs, registered 128 games and kicked 349 goals. He was awarded the Coleman Medal in 1999 when he topped the tally with 88 goals for West Coast. At Essendon he topped the goalkicking in 1994 with 32 goals. He led Port's goal kicking in their inaugural season, 1997, when he kicked 70 goals. In the year he won the Coleman Medal he kicked 88 goals in the home and away season and, with the finals, he registered a total of 95 goals.
- Cameron Cloke: Collingwood (2004-2006), 21 games, 11 goals, Carlton (2007-2009), 36 games, 25 goals, Port Adelaide (2010), 1 game, 0 goals. The son of David Cloke, who played with both Richmond and Collingwood, he was one of three Cloke brothers who played at the top level. Cameron was recruited from Park Orchards and Eastern Ranges Under 18s. He showed promise and didn't take a backward step, however his career was severely hampered by a serious shoulder injury.

FINALS BETWEEN PORT ADELAIDE AND COLLINGWOOD

PORT ADELAIDE MAGPIES

Midway through the 1990 football season the SANFL's Port Adelaide Football Club applied to join the AFL. Collingwood opposed Port Adelaide's 1990 AFL bid, citing confusion in the magpie brands and similar jumper designs. Port had adopted black and white colours in 1902, was called the magpies in the press that year, and used magpies in its emblem by the club's 1908 annual report. The club's trademark since 1975 had been a magpie in a disc (left). Had Port's 1990 bid been successful, that emblem would have been dropped. Collingwood had also used magpie iconography from 1892, its first year, and the respective club logos seem to have mimicked each other last century, such as one of a magpie standing on a fence rail (Collingwood from 1951 and Port from 1954). Collingwood's emblem in 1990 (right) was created in 1985 and derived from a similar version used in 1983. However, unlike Port's bird, Collingwood's had been reversed in 1982 to be "forward looking" to the right. The 1985 version of Collingwood's emblem was replaced in 1992 for the club's centenary logo, which retained a magpie looking to the right. Port's magpie logo was used by its SANFL team until 2019, albeit with the club's name on the disc having a different word order and orientation from 1996 to 2010. It was replaced by the club's 150th anniversary logo, which is without a magpie, in 2020.
